INTRODUCTION

Background

The European Union Chamber of Commerce in China (European Chamber) was founded by 51 member companies on 19th October 2000. The rationale for establishing the European Chamber was based on the need of the European Union (EU) and European businesses to find a common voice across the various business sectors throughout China.

The European Chamber has grown to more than 1,700 member companies and operates from seven chapters across nine cities: Beijing, Nanjing, South China (Guangzhou and Shenzhen), Shanghai, Shenyang, Southwest China (Chengdu and Chongqing) and Tianjin.

The European Chamber is recognised by the European Commission and the Chinese authorities as the official voice of European businesses in China.

Vision

- To be the unified, independent and influential voice of European businesses in China.
- To be a member-value-driven organisation serving European companies across all industries in China.

Mission Statement

As a member-based organisation, the European Chamber seeks to:

- ensure greater market access and provide a level playing field for European businesses in China;
- improve market conditions for all businesses in China;
- facilitate networking among members and stakeholders;
- provide members with relevant information on doing business in China; and
- update its members on economic trends and legislation in China.

Principles

- We are an independent, non-profit organisation governed by our members.
- We work for the benefit of European businesses as a whole.
- We operate as a single, networked organisation across China.
- We maintain close, constructive relations with Chinese and European officials, while retaining our independence.
- We seek the broadest possible representation of European businesses in China within our membership: large, medium and small enterprises from all business sectors and European Member States.
- We operate in accordance with Chinese laws and regulations.
- We treat all our members, business partners and employees with fairness and integrity.

Engaging through Working Groups

The working groups are organised by industry or horizontal issue and are the core of the European Chamber's advocacy activities.

Working Group Meetings

The working group meetings provide a closed forum for members to meet with guest speakers such as industry experts and government officials, and to discuss and analyse relevant issues.

Working group discussions are also used for the drafting of the European Chamber's annual European Business in China Position Paper, which outlines in detail the problems European businesses in China are facing and provides the working groups' recommendations for resolving such issues, to the benefit of both Europe and China.

Working groups also provide opportunities to attend regular meetings with both high- and working-level government officials.

Influence the Development of Legislation

The working groups provide comments and issue statements on draft legislation or changes to existing legislation. This enables the European Chamber to both influence the legislative process and keep members informed of the latest developments in their respective sectors.

Position Paper

The annual Position Paper is the white paper of the European Chamber. It represents the views of European companies conducting business in China, detailing their key concerns and recommendations on regulations, government policies and trade, as well as China's WTO commitments.

Business Confidence Survey

The purpose of the European Business in China Business Confidence Survey is to provide an annual snapshot of European companies' successes and challenges in China. Published since 2004, it serves as a broad indicator as to how European companies judge China's current and future business environment, and allows the European Chamber to analyse the underlying causes of their problems.

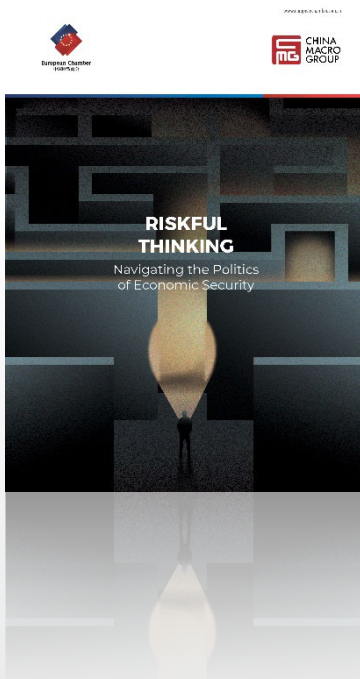

EURObiz

The European Chamber's business magazine features Chamber news, articles and features that address the important issues affecting European businesses in China, the Chinese and European economic environment and pressing changes to governmental rules and regulations. The e-magazine is distributed to members bimonthly. There is also an online version at www.eurobiz.com.cn and a EURObiz app that can be downloaded free of charge from the Apple App Store.

Thematic Reports

The European Chamber regularly conducts in-depth studies on topical issues in China's economic and policy landscape. These issues typically have a far-reaching influence on a wide range of industries, both domestic and foreign.

Through these studies, the European Chamber makes constructive suggestions on improving the policy environment—both in China and the EU—to the benefit of all stakeholders. The European Chamber has published the following studies in the past two years:

Riskful Thinking: Navigating the Politics of Economic Security

Launched in March 2024, the report details the different approaches adopted by the EU, China and the US for managing perceived threats to their respective economies, as well as the actions that European businesses are taking to build resilience into their China operations and mitigate a growing number of risks.

Flash Survey on the Impact of China's Data Regulations

Launched in November 2023, the report provides an overview of the impact of data regulations and the areas where further steps are needed to optimise the country's regulatory framework for cross-border data transfers.

China's Innovation Ecosystem: the localisation dilemma

Launched in April 2023, the report highlights that the complexity of China's business environment is necessitating a wide range of research and development (R&D) strategies to be deployed by European companies.

Carbon Neutrality: The Role of European Companies in China's Race to 2060

Launched in May 2022, the report identifies areas where EU-China cooperation can be deepened so that China can front load the technologies it needs to accelerate its carbon neutrality drive.

Women in Business Report

Launched in December 2022, the report provides an overview of the progress some of the largest European companies operating in China have made in promoting gender diversity in leadership roles, as well as in their general workforce.
