

Travel Experience during COVID – Roundtrip from Shanghai to Tianjin

Flight from SHA (Shanghai Hongqiao airport) to TSN (Tianjin Airport) was smooth and on time.

Drive to Cangzhou, Hebei, which took about 2.5 hours, was no trouble, and the highway toll-free.

We could meet with our supplier as usual.

We had made arrangements to get back to Shanghai by train, but the police at Cangzhou station denied us access.

We managed to get those train tickets refunded, apart from the regular charges for late cancellation.

We drove back to TSN, aiming for a late flight back to SHA.

We managed to reach TSN on time. To enter, we were required to scan a QR code and get a 'green' sign, a process that took a few minutes.

Checking in was quick, and the flight on time. Yet another QR code to scan leading to a form requiring more information to fill in while onboard.

Flight landed on time. A bus to drive us to the arrival area, where security were also equipped with hazmat suits. And yet another QR code to scan, regulating the flow of passengers going through in a relieving green 'B' channel.

No one went through 'A' during the time I was there.

Now back home, appreciating how far the situation has changed from how it used to be. Looking forward to the post-pandemic life.

Disclaimer: This document is for information and reference only. It is not produced by the European Union Chamber of Commerce in China. No liability will be assumed for the completeness or accuracy of the contents.